

First Hawaiian Bank Offers Free MyMoney Online Financial Literacy Program for K-12 Students

Provides Interactive, Age-Appropriate Curriculum to Supplement Student Learning due to COVID-19 Pandemic's Disruption to Schools

HONOLULU – First Hawaiian Bank (FHB) today announced that their MyMoney financial education program is now available, free and online to all Hawaii, Guam and Saipan students, kindergarten through 12th grade. The free online version is being offered in response to the COVID-19 pandemic's disruption to schools and provides supplemental curriculums for elementary, middle and high schools that can be used by students, parents and teachers. The FHB MyMoney Online Program is an age-appropriate and interactive program that teaches students how to make wise financial decisions to encourage a lifetime of financial well-being.

“We initially developed MyMoney to provide Hawaii high school students with access to financial education, and we are pleased to be able to now offer a free online version, to all students K-12,” said Gina Woo Anonuevo, executive vice president and chief compliance officer, First Hawaiian Bank Corporate Compliance Group. “We realize that Hawaii’s public schools do not currently require financial management education and our MyMoney program is an effort to bridge that gap through technology. The program helps students build confidence in making informed financial decisions, providing them with the building blocks for financial well-being at an early age.”

The MyMoney online financial literacy education program is available free to students K-12 in Hawaii, Guam and Saipan. Interested teachers, parents and students should go to FHB.com/mymoney to register or to learn more about the financial education curriculum for students in K-12 grades.

Currently, Hawaii public schools are not required to provide financial education courses. In 2015, First Hawaiian Bank partnered with EverFi, a leader in education technology, to provide a financial education curriculum at no cost to five Hawaii public high schools. Both teachers and students saw dramatic results in financial knowledge gains after course completion and recognized the value and impact financial literacy has on students as they transition to college and adulthood. Since the program's inception, over 5,300 Hawaii public high school students have participated in the MyMoney Program.

Elementary School: Financial Literacy for Kids

The financial literacy curriculum for elementary students lays the groundwork for financial decision-making. The program uses real-life, age-appropriate financial scenarios and interactive and game-based learning to teach even the youngest learners in a fun way about money management from budgeting, credit and borrowing, and financial planning for the future.
